Grange Entertained at Newcomb Home

The members of the Orchard City Grange held their initial social meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Newcomb on Campbell avenue, Tuesday evening. A departure from the former custom of serving refreshments late in the evening was made. Supper was served on the arrival of the guests. Three large tables were prettily decorated and filled with an abundance of good things to eat. About 25 sat down to the repast. After a pleasant hour at the tables the rest of the evening was spent in singing, social conversation and making plans for the future meetings. The next social meeting of the Grange will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Townsend, on Tuesday evening, January 30. The regular meeting of the Grange will be held Tuesday evening, January 23, at the I. O. O. F. Hall.

Old Settlers' Day Committee Meeting

The various committees for the celebration are expected to meet at the library building Saturday evening at 7 o'clock, sharp, to arrange for definite work.

Dr. Aked Ill

The speaker committee for Old Settlers' Day had hoped to secure Dr. Aked of San Francisco to deliver the address on the 22d of February but Mr. Atkinson just received word from his secretary stating that he was ill at Pas Robles Hot Springs and not able to make any engagements.

Lecture on White Slave Traffic

J. C. Westenberg, superintendent of the "Whosoever-Will Rescue Mission," located on the Barbary Coast of San Francisco, gave an illustrated lecture at the Congregational church last Tuesday evening at which a fair audience was in attendance. Mr. Westenberg is going throughout the State in an effort to inform the people of the awful conditions that exist in the city and to arouse them in a crusade against those evils. He is also educating the innocent and unsuspecting against the methods used by the traffickers in girls.

Come to Sunday School

You are invited to come and help us in our new Sunday School rooms at the Methodist Church. We have a few vacant chairs in each class room. With the new corps of teachers and the help of those who were in last year we intend to make this the best year the Sunday School has ever had. The Sunday School department is now equipped with a separate room for most classes and means of calling all classes to the main hall for the review at close of class period. Next Sunday at 9:48 the combined Sunday School choir and orchestra will give a selection from the book which Ex-Superintendent Wright sent us for Christmas. It is expected that all scholars hear this.

Breaks Leg a Second Time

Lester Bracket, of Harrison Avenue, had the misfortune to break a leg below the hip in the latter part of November and was getting along nicely until last evening he fell and broke the bone the second time. He was taken to the hospital where with the assistance of the X-ray the fracture was given proper attention. It is surely too bad that the brave little lad who has been so patient and cheerful for seven weeks should suffer a second siege of it.

Will Construct Curbs

The old plank curbing in front of the property of Mr. Thomas, Mr. Rodeck, Mrs. B. Campbell and the Methodist Church was torn up this week in preparation for the laying of cement curbs and gutters.

Houses Being Numbered

E. G. Lanz has been busy the last few days and as a result the residents of the east side of town have their houses practically all numbered. It is expected that the work will be continued on this side of the tracks at once.

Work on Second Street

Improvements on Second were begun this week with the laying of sidewalks on the south end and the clearing out of trees and opening of the street north.

Death Caused by Fall

Many friends who heard with regret of the death of J. W. Grigsby, of Napa, some weeks ago have wondered as to the cause of his demise. A letter just received by the editor from Mrs. Grigsby states that her husband died as the result of a fall received in the Methodist church by tripping in a loose carpet on the stairs. He lived just six weeks after.

Death of Richard Brown

Richard Brown died Tuesday evening after an illness of one week at his temporary home in one of Miss Lewis' cottages on Central avenue, where he had lived for the last three months. A private funeral was held yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the parlors of Curry & Gripenstraw, San Jose; interment at Oak Hill cemetery. Mr. Brown was a bachelor, a native of New Jersey, and was an old soldier, aged 80 years, 1 month and 19 days. He was an uncle of Frank Brown who just moved from Second street to Melrose.

Death of James Lane

James Robert Lane, one of the early pioneers of California, passed away at Agnew Friday, January 5, at the age of 78 years, 6 months and 23 days. He was a native of Long Island, N. Y., but came to this State when in his 'teens, arriving in San Francisco June 15, 1849. He was a shipcalker by occupation, and held a membership in the Shipcalkers' Association of San Francisco up to the time of his death. The funeral was held Sunday afternoon, Jan. 7th, at Los Gatos, with services conducted by the Rev. E. A. Winning, at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Abbie M. Taylor, on Johnson avenue. Burial was in the Los Gatos Cemetery.

Mr. Lane lived in Campbell about two years, leaving here in 1910 and making his home in Los Gatos until he was sent to Agnews a few months later. His fifth wife, Mrs. Clara A. Lane, now resides here. He also leaves a son, Bert Lane, of Long Island.

Man in Burglar's Mask Was Only Introducing Patent Safety Alarm and Preventer.

As I opened the door I saw a man with a burglar's mask kneeling before the safe. The next moment he had turned and shoved a revolver into my face.

"Throw up your hands!" he said.

I did so.

"You understand," he remarked pleasantly, "that I can in the present circumstances loot the premises at my pleasure?"

I confessed that he could.

"You realize that you are at my mercy?"

"I do," I replied.

"You acknowledge that I can blow you to kingdom come if I like?" he persisted.

"Certainly," I admitted.

"Well, then," he said, "you will be interested to know that I got in without difficulty through your parlor window. Had it been equipped with Smith's patent safety burglar alarm and preventer this could not have happened. Installed, complete with batteries, for $25. Allow me to hand you a circular. Good night, sir."

Then, pocketing his revolver, he withdrew.

Marking Place of an Interview.

On the riverside promenade at Ems there is a stone inscribed, "13 Juli 1870. 9 Uhr 10 Min. Morgens." This marks the exact spot where Wilhelm I. and Count Benedetti terminated the interview which led the French to declare war. After the Franco-Prussian war the old emperor often returned to Ems. On one occasion his doctor mentioned that the municipality wished to commemorate the interview with Benedetti, which they considered the most memorable event in the annals of the town.

He was instructed to meet the emperor on the promenade by the Lahn at 6 a. m. the following day. Wilhelm then said: "During my lifetime let nothing be erected to recall that sorrowful struggle. When I am dead do as you please. Since you wish to know where I dismissed Benedetti, it was here under this tree at 9:10 in the morning." And saying this he placed his foot on the spot where the monument now stands.—London Chronicle.

Wise Servant.

A woman in Trenton, N. J., who has been having a lot of trouble with her domestic help, was obliged recently to accept the temporary service of a raw recruit in the shape of an Irish girl just landed in this country.

After a preliminary survey of the girl and a dejected sigh, the lady of the house asked:

"What can you do?"

"Shure, most anything at all, mum," responded the newcomer.

The lady of the house glanced about the room. There was everything to be done. "Could you fill the lamps?" she finally ventured to ask.

"Shure, I kin fill the lamps!" exclaimed the enthusiastic Celt, as she grabbed one and started out. Then, with the air of one wishing above all things to suit the possible caprices of a new employer, she paused to query:

"An' is it gas or oil ye'd be wantin' thim filled with?"

Why?

He had just asked the all important question; and as she gazed dreamily into space, he knew that his life's happiness rested in her answer. Slowly—slowly—she turned her head; his pulses quickened. "Will you answer me one question?" she asked in a tense voice. "Y-e-s," he responded, breathlessly, leaning forward to catch the precious words. "Why," she asked, in a whisper—"why, when I doubled that no trump—lid—you—lead—me—a—club?"—Harper's.

BREEDING HORSES FOR ARMY

Government Has Plan Whereby Owners of Mares May Obtain Services of Noted Stallions.

The public generally knows that the government has outlined a plan to encourage the breeding of horses for the army whereby mare owners in suitable sections will have the command of service to first-class stallions free, in return for which they agree to give the United States options on resulting foals at a fair price. The plan was was taken up as a means to provide a good supply of horses such as the army needs, which, strange as it may seem, is rapidly becoming more and more limited. An appropriation was suggested at the last session of the Sixty-first congress, but no action was taken, one objection being that the plan was not practical—that farmers would not enter into such agreements with the government.

Fortunately, funds were available to make an experiment to determine this point. Mr. August Belmont of New York presented to the government two of his best-known stallions, Henry of Navarre and Octagon, and the department of agriculture placed them at the command of farmers in the vicinity of Front Royal, Va., on exactly the terms outlined in the government plan.

By the approval of the war department, the price to be paid for the resulting foals at three years of age was $150, and no difficulty whatever was experienced in getting farmers to breed their mares under these terms. About 50 mares were bred, the stallions reaching Virginia somewhat late in the season and Octagon's usefulness being curtailed by a severe attack of distemper.

The interest of the Virginia farmers is keen, and already 50 additional mares have been offered for the season of 1912, and the services of more stallions could easily be utilized if available.

Circular 178 of the bureau of animal industry explains the department's breeding plan and may be obtained on application to the secretary of agriculture, Washington, D. C.

The Silo for Dairymen.

This is the time of the year when the dairymen or dairy farmer who owns a silo likes to talk about silage. Good silage comes as near being June pasture in January as any feed with which the dairyman is familiar. Its succulent or juicy nature especially fits it for stimulating the milk flow and keeping the cow in vigorous health.

Probably the most important rule in the profitable dairy is to keep the cow's milk flowing freely as possible after the flow has once been started by parturition or calf birth. To do this demands right feeding and good care. Silage is a cheap feed to cut up, and valuable to use. It is grown on the farm. This is a fact of importance in this day of high-priced mill feeds.

Three Milkings Daily.

According to some experiments noted by the department of agriculture, it was found that where cows were milked three times a day, morning, noon and evening, the milk was richer at noon and the poorest in the morning, when milked morning and evening, the milk was slightly richer in the evening.

Keep Horse Comfortable.

A horse is a good deal like a man. If you keep him bundled up in a heavy blanket in the barn, he will be almost frozen when you take him out of doors. You would not think of wearing an overcoat in the house, would you? If you blanket your horse at all in the stable, let it be with a light stable blanket

CHINA THE SPHINX AMONG NATIONS

SPREAD OF THE CHINESE REVOLUTION

THE history of the human race affords no more interesting study than that of the huge Chinese empire, which after a slumber of many centuries is now bursting the shackles of her conservatism and aspiring to new life and new ideals. Starting in the province of Szechuan, the revolt against the Manchu dynasty spread down the Yangtse valley and southward to the coast. In the shaded portion of the map, showing the huge slice of the empire held by the rebels, Hankow and Nanking are the only important cities under imperial control.

There was a time in her history when she was the most progressive empire in the world. Possibly, within her territory first began the development and promotion of civilized life—the upward tendency of man from the cave to the palace, from the nomadic to the sedentary, from the loose system of tribal patriarchism to fixed laws and institutions. She was the contemporary of Egypt, of Babylon, of Assyria, of Greece, and long before Rome was anything more than a primitive settlement China had a system of organized life and a fixed literature.

These ancient empires are no more, but China still is. The continuity of her racial life has been maintained for 3,000, perhaps for 4,000 years; and this great Mongolian land, which was administering laws and justice when the slaves of the Pharaohs were erecting the pyramids is as virile as any nation in the world today. Then the progressive civilization of the Chinese was arrested and the whole life of the race seemed suddenly to crystallize. There was no advance from this position and apparently no retrocession. Therein the remarkable singularity of the Chinese is seen. With the west there is either progress or decline—improvement or utter decay. There is no middle ground. But with the Chinese, on the contrary, everything has been stationary.

Cause of Chinese Conservatism.

This fixedness of Chinese life is traceable to the teachings of Confucius, who lived in the fifth century before the Christian era and whose doctrines are accepted by practically all Chinese. He was not the founder of a religion, in the accepted western sense of that term, but rather of a philosophic system. Confucius, whose studies extended back to the beginnings of things Chinese, discovered a golden state of happiness, and his philosophy sought the restoration of the people to this golden era and so circumscribed them by rules of conduct that the past became an established form and the desire for change was extinguished.

Thus was the spirit of progress shackled in China. Laws, usages, customs, manners, became crystallized. Industrial life became fixed, and today husbandmen are using tools similar to those which their progenitors employed when Rome was contending with Carthage for the supremacy of the ancient world. China until recently has since been living with her face to the past, affording to the world a changeless phenomenon which has been the wonder of scientists and scholars.

Ceremonial rule regulates every act of the Chinese. It is based on the so-called classics, which may be called both the constitution and the Bible of the Chinese and which binds emperor and peasant alike. Polygamy, although to some extent practiced among the Chinese, is generally interdicted and, of course, prevails among the Mohammedans of the empire. But concubinage is common and the same double standard of morals prevails in China as elsewhere. In the Chinese family girls are a burden, boys are a joy, and hence female children are put to death.

The industrial life of the Chinese is one of great intensity. Into an area of 1,500,000 square miles comprised in China proper is crowded a population of 426,000,000 human beings—a fourth of the people of the earth. No such vast homogeneous population was ever before assembled in any single country in the world and the task of supplying their numerous wants is herculean. The soil, however, is fertile and although it is cultivated by hand, or by the rudest of farming implements, not an available foot of it is permitted to go to waste. Fences, which occupy space, are rare in China. Even grass, which in comparison with grains, such as wheat, barley and corn, conduces less to the support of life, is denied room. Fish is abundant and rice is the staple food for the bulk of the population. All decaying matter is returned to the soil to fertilize it and, thus replenished, the land continues to yield rich harvests.

In the mechanical arts the Chinese are as industrious and patient as in the cultivation of the soil, but they lack the tools and, more than the tools, that spirit of initiative and progress which means success today. In some of the arts they are wonderfully skilled. But as an industrial people, as the term is understood in progressive America, they lag far behind.

Some Great Achievements.

To the student of history they seem a different people from those who built the Grand canal, the most remarkable waterway in the world; who carried the Great Wall over rivers, mountains and canons for nearly 1,500 miles as a barrier against Tartar invasion; who first devised the system, crude as it was, of movable type and who first used explosives in the art of warfare. This was, however, before the period when their national life seemed to crystallize and progress was turned backward.

Among the monuments of mankind the Great Wall is unique. It includes a greater mass of masonry than all the works of ancient Rome and Egypt

—aqueducts and pyramids—combined. Twenty feet high, 25 feet wide at the base and 15 feet at the top, with huge towers from 37 to 50 feet high rising at intervals of 100 yards for the accommodation of armed men, it is carried over a broken country a distance of 1,259 miles. And this great work—the most supendous line of defense ever erected by man—was built more than 200 years before Christ, while the shadow of ancient Rome lay over the world.

The Chinese race has had its winter and now it seems that this wonderful people have again reached spring in the cycle of the centuries. The shackles of a benumbing conservatism are being broken and the leaders of the race while reverent of the past are looking toward the future—toward light and power and progress.

The revolutionary movement today is more than anti-dynastic. It means more than the expulsion of the Manchus, who have lorded it over the Chinese since they were called in to aid in the suppression of a rebellion in 1643 and finding the country so good and so favorable concluded to remain. Corrupt as may have been many of the Manchu rulers, they cannot justly be charged with all the miseries which have afflicted China during the period of their ascendancy. These evils, while undoubtedly augmented by Manchu rule, may be traced to the system under which the spirit of Chinese progress has been throttled—a system which was founded by her sages and which during thousands of years has become crystalized in her national character.

WITHOUT ONIONS OR SAGE

Something New in Combinations for Poultry Dressing—Summer Savory Is Preferred.

Into a colander break up about one quart bread crumbs, using bread that is a day or more old. Hold colander under faucet, let water run on crumbs just long enough to wet each little piece. Now shake water from colander, hang it up or place in another convenient dish to drip almost dry. Turn crumbs into mixing bowl and with large mixing spoon break each piece as small as possible. Season with salt, pepper, summer savory, tasting as each is added. Now get very small piece of salt pork, run it through the meat cutter or scrape with sharp edge of knife. Mix it well. Add now a well-beaten egg and a pinch of baking soda, and a finely-chopped onion may be added. Personally, I don't like onion in poultry dressing, neither do I like sage. Summer savory, to my mind, is preferable. I like cold water for wetting crumbs, as hot water has a tendency to make the dressing mushy; neither do I like mixing the dressing with the hands. I find the use of a large mixing spoon most satisfactory. Butter may be used in place of pork, but the pork gives a nice flavor or taste, and must be finely minced before adding. —Boston Globe.

Two measuring cups kept in the kitchen will save rinsing out one a great many times. Keep one cup for dry ingredients, the other for liquids. Have both the same size.

To take the leather stains out of light colored hose add a tablespoon of borax to the water in which they are washed. This quantity is sufficient for only one or two pair.

To keep the hands from getting black when peeling apples use a silver knife instead of a steel one. The acid of the fruit (acetic acid) acts on the iron in the steel, but does not affect the silver.

Different uses for small scrubbing brushes may be indicated by burning the name on the back, as "vegetables," "pans," "hands," etc. Then there will be no risk of using the wrong brush.

To remove whitewash from floors, furniture and windows apply a small quantity of paraffin on a soft cloth. The stains will disappear completely and the paraffin does not injure the most delicate paint.

The Flavor of Corn.

Some cooks think that the flavor of corn on the cob is better preserved if it is boiled in its thin inner husks. The can be turned back to remove the silk and then pushed over the ears again. Tie with a string made from a husk and put them in cold salted water. Let it come to a boil gradually and boil for four or five minutes. Corn is injured by long boiling; the exact time usually depends on the corn. Country housekeepers who own vegetable gardens and can cook very tender young ears as soon as they are plucked, do not let them boil at all. They put them over the fire in cold water and take them up when the water has begun to break out in bubbles in the center of the pot. They are delicious.

Calf's Brains With Butter.

Soak the brains in cold water until white, carefully removing the outer membrane. Drain, place in a saucepan with one pint of boiling water, two tablespoonfuls of vinegar, a half teaspoonful of salt, a slice of onion, quarter of a bay leaf and part of a blade of mace. Simmer very gently for 15 minutes. In the meantime place two tablespoonfuls of butter in a small saucepan and heat slowly until it becomes a dark brown. Drain the brains, arrange on a hot platter, add to the browned butter one tablespoonful of vinegar, pour over the brains and send at once to the table.

Serving Potatoes.

A delicious way of serving potatoes is the following: Boil and mash 12 medium sized white potatoes, using one tablespoonful of butter instead of milk. When they are nearly cold add the yolks of three eggs, one teaspoonfull of grated nutmeg, and six drops of onion juice. Stir these ingredients together until they are smooth. Make up into small cone shaped croquettes and stand away to harden. When they are firm roll them in the beaten white of the eggs and cracker dust and fry in deep boiling fat until a light brown.

Sour Pickles.

Six quarts of vinegar, ten-cent box of mustard, one pint coarse salt, one pint sugar, one ounce whole cloves, one and a half ounces alum, six small onions. Mix all together in a jar; drop in cucumbers any time. Put grape leaves over the pickles when you have your jar full and they will keep fine.

Spice Cake.

One cup sugar, one-half cup butter, one egg, one cup sour milk, one teaspoon soda, spices, two cups flour, one cup chopped nuts and raisins mixed.

Meat Balls.

To hamburg steak add one unbeaten egg, few cracker crumbs, salt and pepper, little onion juice; form in ball and fry. Very tender

TOM IS GIVEN BIG SURPRISE

Man Answers Advertisement Inserted by Wife Offering to Sell Old Family Lawn Mower.

"A neighbor of mine," said Tom Dunn, "used to bore everybody in the train by bemoaning the vagaries of his lawn mower. He had about ten square feet of lawn that he used to shave every other day. His lawn mower, however, seemed possessed of a mischievous demon of some sort. It would alternately fail to cut grass at all and dig great furrows in the soft turf. He tried to sell it, but no one would take it as a gift. At last one morning he showed me an advertisement in a paper offering for sale at a ridiculously low rate a peerless lawn mower that was warranted to cut grass as evenly as a patent razor. The owner's address would be furnished at the office of the newspaper.

"'I'm going to get that peerless lawn mower this very day,' chortled my neighbor, 'and take it home to my wife as a surprise this afternoon. She's been wild to get rid of the old mower. From the description this new one is just what we've been yearning for. And tonight I'll throw the old one into the dust bin.'

"The following day we were in the same train again, and I expected to be bored by a glowing account of the glorious new lawn mower. But, to my surprise, its possessor seemed trying to avoid me.

"'How about the new lawn mower?' I asked.

"'There is no new lawn mower,' he answered shortly.

"'But that advertisement—'

"'But that advertisement,' he replied with terrible solemnity, 'was inserted by my wife.'"

Partly at Home.

A good old Scotch minister, calling unexpectedly on a widow who lives in a cottage on the outskirts of the village, surprised her in the midst of washing a lot of clothes. She hurriedly hid behind a clotheshorse and told her little boy to say that she was out.

The visitor knocked at the door. "Well, Jamie," he said, "and where is your mother?"

"My mother's not in; she's down street on a message," promptly replied the lad.

"Indeed," replied the minister, with a glance at the bottom of the screen. "Well, tell her I called; and say that the next time she goes down the to the village she should take her feet with her."—Ladies' Home Journal.

One day Mark Twain was being shaved by a very talkative barber and was forced to listen to many of his anecdotes.

TO EXPLORE THE DEAD SEA

German Expedition Has Started to Investigate Mysteries of That Body of Water.

Isn't it a remarkable fact that so little is known about the Dead sea—supposed scene of one of the greatest tragedies in all history? A German expedition is on its way thither, equipped with a large motor boat and modern sounding apparatus. Only two expeditions have preceded this one. The first was fitted out by an American, Lieutenant Lynch, in 1848, and was rather more thorough in its work than would have been expected before the days of motor craft and deep sounding apparatus. The second exploration was made in 1864, by the duke de Luynes, but did not compare in efficiency with the Lynch investigations.

To anybody who has seen the Dead sea at close quarters the surprising thing is that it does not contain any animal life. The Sea of Tiberias is prolific in fish, and the Jordan must carry large quantities of them into the Dead sea. What becomes of them? Is there an outlet? If so, where does it empty? Like the Caspian, it is lower than the Mediterranean sea.

Seen from the Mount of Olives on a clear day, due east, the Dead sea looks like a magnificent body of water—very green under the sun's rays; but near at hand one has the impression that he is gazing upon a stagnant, filthy pool. Not only is the water saturated with salt and many other mineral substances, but a coating of bituminous, glue-like scum is near the shore, unless a strong wind has driven it into the lake. The feeling of the body, after leaving the water, is highly disagreeable.

Some people with sensitive skins suffer from a rash, like the sting of nettles, after taking a dip in the filthy pond. Whence comes this oleaginous scum? Likely as not there is a deposit of bitumen somewhere in the region, similar to that greatest physical mystery on earth—the Trinidad lake of pitch. Or there may be petroleum among those desolate hills. At Baku, on the western shore of the Caspian sea, are the greatest spouting oil wells on earth.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Reporting News an Art.

You will find before I am done that I have a proper conceit of myself. I think I know what news is and how to prepare it equally for the tea table and the breakfast table. Like victuals, it may be served hot and savory, or raw and unsavory, be brought on plain or be dressed and decorated to suit the varying public taste. There is in this, as in cooking, an art.

A fine ruddy murder, like a fair round of beef, may be ruined in the roasting, and a scandal fat and juicy, blond and frowsy, be wholly spoiled by a figurative excess of vinegar and garlic. A skillful chef can take a few scraps and fabricate a dish to delight a gourmet.

So the deft reporter can put this and that together and piece a story to stir the town. In both cases, however, there must be a basis of fact. The essential ingredients must be there. It is given to no man to make a silk purse out of a sow's ear; to no cook to render a saute out of sawdust and bootheels; to no reporter to turn a scoop out of a lie.—Henry Watterson before Boston Press Club.

The "Baby McKee" Jokes.

One day, in the course of business, I found myself in Mrs. Harrison's presence. That she was suffering keenly needed no telling. She had been reading some of the newspapers; and as I approached she raised her eyes and exclaimed:

"Oh, Colonel Crook, what have we done!"

Shocked at her appearance I said: "I do not understand, madam. What do you mean?"

"What have we ever done," she exclaimed, "that we should be held up to ridicule by newspapers, and the president be so cruelly attacked, and even his little, helpless grandchildren be made fun of, for the country to laugh at?"

For a moment I did not know what to reply; and she continued:

"If this is the penalty for being president of the United States, I hope the good Lord will deliver my husband from any further experience."—W. H. Crook in "Memories of the White House."

The Real Reason.

Adam sat down. "I am the greatest man in the world," he said to himself; "the wisest sage, the biggest financier and captain of industry; I hold all the records from the hundred-yard dash to the marathon; my wife is the best-dressed woman in the world; I am the best-dressed man. Gadzooks, I am too good to be true; I will eat of the fruit of the tree of Evil."—Life.

Liked Variety.

When six-year-old Harry was saying his prayers at his mother's knee one night he failed to say "Amen."

"Harry," asked his mother, "haven't you forgotten something?"

"Oh, say, mamma," was the response, "I'm tired of always saying 'Amen.' I'm going to say 'A woman.'" And he did.

Appropriate Recreation.

An author, whose work is imaginative, should, for his rest, do something logical, such as playing patience. An accountant, on the other hand, whose mind will run on figures, should not play patience. He should mold figures out of clay or paint or do something artistic.

MADE BRUIN PEEVISH

AMUSING INCIDENT IN MOUNTAINS OF PENNSYLVANIA.

Bear Has Encounter With Swinging Beetle Which He Uses as Punching Bag and Comes Off Second Best.

A Pennsylvanian once witnessed a curious incident in the mountains of his state, wherein a black bear was the principal figure.

It appears that the winter before the wood cutters of the mountains had broken the handle of one of their tools, a beetle. A rope was tied about the beetle head and it had been left hanging to the low limb of a tree. The man who witnessed the spectacle happened to be in the vicinity one summer day, and, remembering the beetle, started after it to carry it home.

As he came near the place he saw a black bear slowly circling around the hanging beetle at a distance of a few feet. He was too much occupied to notice the man, who stopped to see what bruin was about.

The bear acted as if he thought the beetle were some kind of trap. He would approach within a few feet and sniff. Then he would back off a little way, squat on his haunches and give a low snort, eyeing the tool all the time.

While was thus engaged a sudden breeze sprung up and set the beetle swinging lightly. The animal snorted again and backed off a step or two. Soon another gust struck the beetle and swayed it still more. The bear responded by a louder snort—a sort of challenge.

As soon as the beetle stopped swinging bruin got up and circled about it several times. At length he went near—then nearer. He reached out his paw and touched the thing gently. As it swung toward him he hit it, this time rather forcibly.

The beetle head was a round one of hickory, with heavy iron rings at each end. As it rebounded from the second blow of the creature's paw it hit him fairly on the nose. Angry at this, he rushed at the beetle again and gave it a sounding blow. As it came toward him he dodged a little, just enough to save his nose and receive the blow in his left eye! He hit it again, and his nose got another blow. That hurt so much that he growled angrily and rooted viciously in the leaves.

Bruin was furious by this time and went at that beetle as if he meant to annihilate it. He gave it a tremendous blow with his right paw, and the tool swung clear over the limb, came down on the other side, and struck him on top of the head. He uttered a roar that made the woods ring. Finally he caught the beetle in his paws, pulled upon it until he broke the rope, and then went to cuffing and biting the tool.

When he found that it did not fight back any more bruin let it roll to the ground. Then he shook himself and walked off into the woods.

SQUIRRELS OR TREES?

SERIOUS PROBLEM CONFRONTS EXPERTS IN FORESTRY.

Little Animals Cause Serious Trouble Wherever Forest Service Has Tried to Reforest Cut-over or Burned Areas.

Whether we have squirrels or forests in the United States is a question that is now presenting itself urgently to the department of agriculture. Dr. H. H. Henshaw, chief of the biological survey, has just returned to Washington after a tour of the west, where the forest service is worried over this problem.

The squirrels that are forcing themselves into the balance against the trees are the gray squirrels of the west and the Pacific coast. There has been an immense amount of trouble wherever the forest service has tried to reforest either cut-over or burned areas from the small rodents that ate the seeds before they sprouted. The gophers, field mice and ground squirrels have been the worst offenders, and it has been found necessary to exterminate these little pests over large areas before reforesting was at all successful.

This has been done in some cases with the aid of the biological survey, and in cases where from 75 to 80 per cent. of the seed were formerly eaten within 36 hours after planting, it has been found possible to kill off the small ground animals and get a good stand of new timber. In fact, in the Cochapaw forest of Colorado it is probable that the stand of young trees will have to be thinned out to give room the trees ought to have.

But now comes the gray squirrel and presents a new problem to the forester. In most of the reforesting areas the seed of the yellow pine is the most desirable seed to be planted. The gray squirrels, it is found, not only eat the seed that are planted, but if the seed crop is at all light they eat the seed before the foresters can collect them for planting. The rangers have tried the experiment of watching the squirrels and find they frequently can locate the hoards of the little red squirrel, getting as much as a bushel of seed sometimes from a single granary. But the gray squirrel does not hoard the seed. He either eats as he goes or else buries scattered seed so it is useless to look for them.

The biological survey does not want to exterminate the squirrels, and does not intend to poison them, at first at any rate, but will send out hunters to kill them off by shooting in the worst infested regions to see whether they can be held in check till the new trees get a start.

Doctor Henshaw said he made a visit to the national bison range, where 20,000 acres have been fenced on the Flathead Indian reservation, and found the herd of bison installed there doing well and taking kindly to their new surroundings. The Flathead Indians have several thousand acres of land they want to irrigate, and they cannot readily get water to do it without running an irrigation ditch across the bison park. They are willing to do the work of ditch digging themselves or pay the department of agriculture for having it done, but the department does not want to risk this invasion of the bison territory, and the method by which the question shall be settled has not yet been worked out.

Golden Gate Fogs.

The fogs of the Pacific, and especially those on the coast of California and Washington, present some characteristic features of their own. They are low lying, dense and of frequent and regular occurrence, and have been the cause directly and indirectly of a large percentage of marine disasters in the vicinity of San Francisco. Owing to the general movement of the air from the sea toward the land, and the climate of the great interior valley, fog is frequent and well marked. In summer the afternoon sea fog varies in depth from 100 to 1,700 feet, but it rarely reaches far inland.

On some afternoons the velocity of the wind at San Francisco rises with almost clocklike regularity to about twenty-two miles an hour, and a solid wall of fog, averaging 1,500 feet in height, comes through the Golden Gate, causing a fall in temperature to about that of the sea—namely, 55 degrees Fahrenheit.

The upper level of the fog can be plainly seen from the hills in the vicinity. Above the fog level the air is cloudless, and the afternoon temperature ranges from 80 degrees Fahrenheit to 90 degrees Fahrenheit.

Chance for Profit.

Considering the accommodations the young doctor thought the rental asked for the office exorbitant. He enumerated the drawbacks: no sunshine, limited space, stuffy elevator, threadbare and insufficient furniture. The agent listened in tolerant silence, then he turned and looked out of the window at the frenzied crowds dodging to protect life and limb from the onslaughts of trucks and four different car lines that crossed at that corner.

"Yes, sir," he said, "I admit all that, but just look at the opportunity for accidents."

Problem in Natural History.

"Evolution tells us," said the scientist, "that the ear is modified breathing apparatus of the fish."

"Don't believe it," replied the superficial person. "It's utterly impractical. How could the fish manage to snore without waking himself up?"

Embezzling Banker Admits He Overlooked Missionary Fund and Property of Orphan Child.

The embezzling banker's friends were congratulating him.

"How in the world did you keep it up so long without being discovered?" they asked, breathlessly.

"My friends," came an anguished voice from the other side of the bars, "I am unworthy of this laudation. I have been guilty of grave tactical blunders. I failed to have myself elected Sunday school superintendent, and I did not show myself at prayer meeting more than once a month. I could have landed a $700 missionary fund, but heedlessly I allowed it to slip through my fingers and go to another.

"Besides, I might have become the guardian of some poor, dead millionaire's child. I am ill-deserving of your well-meant, but misdirected, praise. My work has been coarse and amateurish, indeed, or I could be free this evening to join you in our tri-weekly poker fest. Woe, woe is me!"

Nature's Washrooms.

On a tiny, rocky isle in Clear Lake, California, there is a perpetual soda fountain, from which gushes better soda water than the chemists can produce. Furthermore, here are natural wash tubs and washing machines and, in some places, even ready-made soap. When taken out the clothes are so clean and white that no rinsing is necessary

Far-Sighted Editor.

The editor of an up-state weekly had advertised a year's subscription as a prize for the largest potato grown in the community. The competition waxed warm, and the enterprising newspaper man was hard pressed to accommodate the scores of tubers which flooded the printing office. His competitor, meeting him on the street, attempted to "kid" the potato booster on his "commission market."

"You don't expect to increase your circulation this way?" scoffed the rival.

"Here's the proposition," answered the editor. "I'm out a dollar and a half subscription. But as near as I can figure spuds at 85 cents a bushel, I'm in exactly seven dollars. I'm going to try rutabegas next!"—Milwaukee Wisconsin.

A Campbell Boy Writes From Panama

Roy Thompson, who is cruising on a U. S. training ship and now at Panama, writes an interesting letter to his parents here, in which he says in part as follows:

"It wont be very long before we will be in the good old U. S. A. once more. Possibly in March or April. I certainly am having a fine trip. Went over the Panama Canal last Saturday. There are certainly lots of men and locomotives at work. There are 380 locomotives working in the canal. Besides there are a great many steam shovels and hoisting cranes. The most of the work now is going on in Culebra Cut, also Gatun dam. We stopped over four hours in Culebra so we had a chance to get a good look at the Cut. I sent away a good many post cards from Culebra but only put on half enough postage. Dont know whether they will go or not. Probably not. At Colon I got my first view of the Atlantic Ocean. The water doesn't look any different than that in the Pacific, though.

"I made a liberty in Panama City yesterday. It is a pretty good sized place. The population, mostly negroes from Jamaica. The American town is Ancon. It is growing fast and will be the future city at this end of the canal. Guatemala City is one of the cheapest cities that I was ever in, and I think Panama one of the dearest. Everything here is dreadfully high.

"I spent my Christmas in Panama. That is I went over after the big dinner. Talk about noise! It seemed almost like being in S. F. Chinatown on the night of July 4. It was my first experience of celebrating 4th of July on Dec. 25. I received the Christmas package all O. K. and a more suitable gift never was received by anyone. I appreciate it very much. Thank you all very much. I thought of you when I awoke in my hammock and wished you a Very Merry Xmas. I wouldn't be sure but I'll claim the honor of beating you as the time here is three hours ahead of S. F. time and we "lash up" at 5. You would have to go some to beat me.

"The president of Panama Republic was aboard today. Every body manned the rail and gave him three cheers. A salute of 42 guns was fired (21 when he came aboard and 21 when he left.) I don't know when we will leave Panama. There is a report out we will be here until Feb. We did expect to leave for Corinto, Jan. 1. We never can tell what we will do or where we will go. We may be in the States in Feb. and we may be way down in Chile and Peru. Just what the Navy Department feels like doing."

Grandpa Brown has been suffering considerable lately with pleurisy. His daughter, Mrs. W. H. Alison of San Jose, has been with him.

State University Arranges Athletic Meet for High Schools

Berkeley, Cal., Jan. 16.—High schools throughout the State, and a number in Oregon and Washington, have accepted the invitation of the University of California to compete in the Second Pacific Coast Interscholastic Meet to be held on the campus April 26 and 27. The meet, to which the Campbell High school, among others, in this vicinity has been invited, will undoubtedly be the most important event on the coast in the realm of high school track athletics. This meet is an annual event.

Special preparations have been made by the Big "C" Society of the University for the entertainment and housing of all the visiting athletes during their entire stay at Berkeley. The fraternities and house clubs have offered their houses tor this purpose.

The evening preceding the meet the University Glee Club will give its annual big show in the Harmon Gymnasium. The visiting athletes will be invited to attend. The monster interscholastic circus will be held Saturday night at California field. This will be the largest affair of its kind ever attempted on the Pacific Coast. At this circus the visiting men and teams will be awarded their medals and cups. The new University swimming pool will be open to the use of the athletes at all times while they are on the campus.

Teams will be limited to twelve men, including the relay team. The meet will be a two-day affair, the heats taking place on Friday, April 26, and the final events on Saturday. All of the usual track events will be on the program, with the exception of the two-mile run.

Medals will be awarded to all taking places. In addition, several handsome cups will be awarded, a perpetual challenge cup for the winning team, a perpetual challenge cup for the winning relay team, an individual cup to be kept by the highest individual pointw inner, and a challenge record cup for the record holder in each event. The medals given at this meet are the most handsome and expensive given at any high school meet on the coast. They are made by Shreve & Co. in San Francisco.

OUT OF THE GINGER JAR

Things are not always what they seem. When Johnny is met at the door with the injunction to "wipe his feet," what really is meant is that he must clean his shoes.

The man who cheapens himself is pretty sure to be marked down by his neighbors.

The new broom sweeps clean only when there is a willing hand at the other end of it.

The self-made man is never finished until some woman gets busy and polishes off the rough edges.

Do not neglect the laying hens' exercise.

When tea is spilled on the table-cloth, as soon as possible cover the stain with common salt. Leave it on for a while, and when the cloth is washed all the stain will have disappeared.

Roast some nice wheat in the oven, add a little good butter and New Orleans molasses, grind it in the coffee-mill, and have some of the finest cereal coffee you ever drank. Saves money, too.

A nice home-made candy for the children is made as follows: Boil two cupfuls of sugar and one cupful of corn syrup until crisp when dropped in cold water. Add to this the whites of two eggs well beaten. Beat this for five minutes until nearly stiff. Drop by spoonfuls on oiled paper.

Buff Cochin Bantams Win Again

Campbell Birds Win 29 Prizes Out of 25 Entries—Cup and Ribbons in Press Office Window

Mr. E. Lisle Keesling's little bantams have again proven their superiority, this time at the big Los Angeles Show. His fine cockerel "Prince," remains undefeated at the two largest shows in Northern California in the hottest of competition, likewise his beautiful pullet "Beauty" has vanquished every competitor in her class in the five biggest shows on the coast, and has a clear record of five blue ribbons.

Mr. Keesling has made a record in winning prizes this season, having won nearly 30 prizes out of 25 entries at six shows. Every bird he has shown has taken a prize. He challenges any other breeder to show as good a record made by Buff Cochin Bantams this season on the coast, of straight show prizes, club prizes not counted.

At the Los Angeles show, his 4 birds won two firsts and two seconds, as follows: 1st Hen, 1st and 2nd Pullet, and 2nd Cockerel. He is in the business to stay and by next year will be in a position to make all other breeders combined look to their laurels. He says that after next year his yards will be headquarters for the little buff banties on this coast.

The numerous ribbons and cup won by these beautiful pets have been on exhibition in the Press office window this week, and will be there for a few days more if any of our readers wish to view them.

Origin of our Earthquake of Last July

According to the December number of the Bulletin of the Seismological Society of America, published at Stanford University, the earthquake which was felt over a large portion of California on July 1, 1911, had its origin beneath the foothills of the Mt. Hamilton Range, a few miles to the north-east of the town of Coyote.

The shock attained its greatest intensity in this immediate neighborhood. The motion is said to have thrown a few persons off their feet. Slides were common in the adjacent mountains. The water in a number of the small streams in that locality became muddy at the time of the shock, while the flow of water increased, in one instance to four times the normal volume, showing that more or less disturbance of the underlying formation had occurred.

The earthquake of 1868 had its origin in a "fault" or rift which lies along the western base of the Mt. Hamilton Range, and the evidence seems to indicate that the July earthquake also had its origin in a movement along a portion of the same fault.—Los Gatos Mail.

BUG-GO
Will Clean Your Trees
Makes Bigger Crops and Better Fruit
Bean's Bug-go is a 60 per cent distillate oil emulsion, so perfectly emulsified that it will stand indefinitely, and dilutes readily with cold water. Oil emulsion is the best remedy for brown apricot scale, black scale, greedy scale, and Italian pear scales. It also cleans the trees of moss and lichens, and leaves the bark soft and brown.
You can't make an oil emulsion that will mix so readily as Bean's Bug-go. Home-made emulsion does not remain emulsified and it collects in large drops, without spreading.
For best results, use with caustic soda. A 50-gal bbl. of Bug-go and a 45-lb pail of caustic soda costs but $9.75 f. o. b. San Jose. This will make 625 gallons of spray and will cover from 3 to 4 acres. Discounts—35 cents per bbl. on two to ten bbls; 70 cents per bbl. on ten bbls. or more. Send $1.75 extra for the bbl. It will be refunded when the bbl. is returned in good condition.
